THE 1946 GOLDBUG

AMHERST HIGH SCHOOL
AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS

FOREWORD

"A word is dead when it is said,
Some say.
I say it just begins to live
That day."

Emily Dickinson

EDITORS' NOTE

War has played an important role in our lives; but peace will play the greatest role. In this issue of THE GOLDBUG we have attempted to portray Amherst High School as it is in time of peace; studious, laughing, pensive, merry, the class of 1946 invites you to "peek" through the keyhole with them and glimpse the daily scenes and activities of school life.

THE GOLDBUG Staff wishes to thank the following persons for their photographic contributions: Mr. Donald S. Lacroix, Mr. Arthur L. Swift, Mr. Kingsley A. Perry, Charles Connelly, Barbara France, Mary Shumway, Harry Lauder, Dorothy Heald, Sheliah Moran, Joyce Davenport, Caroline Fisher, Evelyn Tenney, Norman Campbell, Irma Arial, Miss Ann Whalen. The aerial photography was done by Mr. Lacroix and Jerry Snyder.

DEDICATION

In sincere appreciation for her tireless efforts and deep understanding we dedicate this GOLDBUG to

MISS
BARBARA

whose patience and kind interest have endeared her to the Class of 1946.

With the two editors, Jerry Snyder and Sheliah Moran; and co-business managers, Robert Lanphear and Mildred Warner; the school yearbook has taken as its theme that of informal school life. Miss Buker again devoted her time in helping to prepare it for publication.

IN A CREATIVE MOOD

The Victorious Banner of Freedom

THOMAS MARTIN

Red for the blood of the Revolution,
White for the paper called the Constitution,
And blue, the color of its ink—
Just look at this banner and you will think
Red! For the blood of the Revolution!

The Union Jack; thirteen stars at attention on a blue field,
High on the masts of sailing vessels ranging from Alaska, the home of the seal,
To the warm water of the Caribbean, free from ice.
High on the masts of merchantmen carrying silk and spice,
The Union Jack! Thirteen stars at attention on a blue field.

The inspiration to the cannoneers and infantry of the War of 1812,
A glimpse of this banner was food and drink to them.
And on the sea, the "Wasp" took the "Frolic", making a new home for our "beau-teous banner."

For our emblem of red, white and blue affects men in this manner,
The inspiration of the cannoneers and infantry of the War of 1812.

Into the Mexican War it flew, with General Taylor,
And dazzled by its light, the enemy must flee or Die — and forward it charged into the battles of Reasca de la Palma and Palo Alto.
The historic phrase "General Taylor never surrenders" was so.
Why? Because — Into the Mexican War it flew with General Taylor.

The colors of blood red, pool blue, and snow white have left the South
Amid the sound of rebel yell from rebel mouth.
The tattered banner retreated with the tattered Union armies from Willow Creek and Bull Run,
Made rent and ragged by grey coat, sabre, and gun—
Back it flew, heading the columns of cavalry
Of General Grant — smacking, slashing Lee.
The colors have returned to the South.

Cutting the pattern for the winning of the West
Accompanying cavalry into Sioux and Cheyenne nest,
Raising the flagstaff on a sunny western morn to a bugle's tattoo.
Is our brave banner of red, white and blue
Cutting the pattern for the winning of the West.

The stars have increased at an alarming rate,
And come to a climax at Forty-eight.
You, lord over this country of the free,
Many pledge allegiance to thee.
Your stars have increased at an alarming rate.

Now, once again to the crash of gunfire and bugle's thrill,
The banner takes in stride another war, and up it ascends to San Juan Hill.
Now over the island of Cuba our colors wave,
As it also keeps sentry over patriot's graves
Again it has answered the crash of gunfire and bugle's thrill.

The people under you scream for justice — it's a mania—
A child waves the flag of the embarking of the "Lusitania",
Soon the miniature banner floats amongst oily debris.
The Hun machine gun the survivors afloat on the sea—
The people under you scream for justice!

The chant comes up, "We're coming over and we won't be back 'til it's over, over there".

With the colors heading our boys, they take every dare
Heroism is on the loose in Belleau Wood and Chateau-Thierry
The flag of freedom sings, "One more victory for me".
Now they're coming back, for it's over, over there.

Flash! Pearl Harbor makes history!
A pulverizing defeat, fresh in the memory of you and me
Next to go — Bataan, Corregidor
Bear with us, Old Glory, keep our courage before us once more.
Pearl Harbor has made history.

Faith in God! Faith in the colors!
Carry us to victory in the Battle of the Coral Sea; in other acts of valor
"Onward Christian soldiers", the fray has just begun.
We're in this until death — in until we've won.
Faith in God! Faith in the colors!

The battle for Europe will be ours
The Battle calls us to bring about the victorious hour.
Through Italy, through France. Close in on Fortress, Germany.
Break his back, hamstring him, make it a certainty!
The Battle for Europe is ours!

Next? The yellow rat of the East;
Drive him back to his stinking isle at least.
Your majestic presence is hoisted on Iwo Jima
The hell breaks loose at Hiroshima
Asia is free — the end of the yellow rat of the East.

Banner of blood red, pool blue, and snow white, through strife and calm you've flown
Now the seat of peace is your throne,
And throughout the nation you lead a grand parade
Down the nation's main street accompanied by your color guard in gold braid
Oh, glorious banner of blood red — pool blue — and snow white.

WAITING

HELEN SANDERS

As the clock ticked on
Time marched by.
She watched and studied it
Then gave up with a sigh.

KITTEN POEMS

NANCY PAUL

Soft, fluffy
Kitten, with smooth
Light fur, plays with a ball
And cuffs it towards me with caution, then runs.

SMOKE

HELEN SANDERS

The smoke—
How lazily
It drifts about the air
Like low hanging clouds; it floats by Everywhere.

And then
As the snow falls,
A little cold kitten
Crouches by the doorsill with fear,
And cries.

MUMPS

HELEN SANDERS

If having the mumps
Is one of the bumps
One gets when on vacation,
I choose to remain
In my own domain
And forfeit the great sensation.

At night
When shadows come,
And in the cold stillness,
A little furry kitten curls up
To sleep.

SPRING

NANCY PAUL

As the Warm friendly sun
Sends beams of golden light,
A new tiny rose bud
Will open.

FOOTBALL

The Hurricane eleven got off to a slow start with Classical and Orange nosing out the Maroon and White in the first two games. Amherst then traveled to Palmer to take the first victory of the season. Enfield was second to fall to the Amherst gridmen, while Athol overthrew our eleven, 6-0. The season ended in a blaze of glory as the Hurricanes topped our arch rivals, Northampton.

The season was high-lighted by Lou Bias's passing and kicking; Malinowski's running; and Captain Bob Lanphear's outstanding line work.

SWIMMING TEAM

Starting with an inexperienced team, Coach Rogers guided Amherst through five meets. Amherst, while winning only one meet, lost three close ones to Mt. Hermon, Springfield Tech, and Pittsfield, and finished a high third in the Annual Western Massachusetts Swimming Tournament.

"Mitch" Jacque, Amherst's ace swimmer, was one of the tournament stars in turning in a new one hundred yard backstroke record for Western Mass. The team was hampered all season by lack of a single diver as well as sufficient men for each event. Caldwell Toll and Hubert Bell also set new Amherst High records in the Breast Stroke and Free Style events.

Second row: Toll, Jacque, Bain, Thies.

BASKETBALL

Led by Captain Lou Bias, Amherst High set out to establish an outstanding basketball record. The Hampshire League pennant returned to Amherst high after a fifteen year period of absence as the Hurricanes took eleven Hampshire League games before losing the final game to South Hadley. In the independent games the Hurricanes proved able to take care of themselves, as no team was able to defeat them twice.

In the Western Massachusetts Small School Tournament, Rosary of Holyoke and Williams High of Stockbridge fell to the Hurricanes. In the finals Easthampton proved a little too strong for the Amherst five, winning in overtime, 35 to 33.

First Row: Petraitis, Matuszko, Garvey, Malinoski, Bias.

Second Row: Gunn, Drake, Banks, Correale, Worthley.

BASEBALL

Amherst again rode to a highly successful baseball season with "Mike" Garvey and Dick Leland doing the hurling. Turners Falls, an independent team, accounted for the remaining setback.

Second Row: Hanieski, Doherty, Banks, Kowaleck, Koblinski, Luddy, Manager.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The girls' basketball team had a successful season, winning 7 out of its 11 games. The captain of the team was Ellen Thomas who was also high scorer with Phyllis Sanctuary. The seniors who are leaving the team are Ellen Thomas, Phyllis Sanctuary, Edna Warner, Edith Roberts, Evelyn Tenney, Doris Kulikosky, Sheliah Moran, Anne Fellers, and Lorane Graves.

GIRLS' SPORTS

Girls' sports started out this year with a lively group playing field hockey. The girls worked hard with their "sticks" and developed a good team. The first practice game was played against the Mass. State girls. Later the team went to South Hadley to meet the Mount Holyoke Second Team. Although they lost both games, they showed the ability to play a good game.

Basketball, which was the winter sport, attracted a large number of girls. A larger schedule of games was played than usual.

Swimming and Softball also are sports in which the girls get together for the fun of competition and the development of sportsmanship.

First Row: Warner, Thornton, Pease, Coyne, Scarborough, Moran, Warner.
